RVTS TARGETED RECRUITMENT PILOT

The Remote Vocational Training Scheme (RVTS) assists the recruitment of doctors to targeted rural and remote communities with high medical workforce need, by including the RVTS GP Vocational Training program as a component of the doctor recruitment package. Since 2018, RVTS has successfully assisted the recruitment of 34 doctors to 36 rural and remote locations across Australia, including 11 Aboriginal Medical Services.

RVTS Training is a four-year GP and Rural Generalist training program delivered by Distance Education and Remote Supervision leading to Fellowship of the ACRRM and/or RACGP. RVTS Training is fully funded by the Australian Government.

The Targeted Recruitment model has brought workforce stability and enhanced continuity of care to the participating communities, as well as career progression to specialist qualifications for the recruited doctors. The RVTS Targeted Recruitment strategy is an Australian Government Initiative.

Mount Isa is affectionately referred to as the 'Oasis of the Outback' with a population of approximately 19,000. Mining of lead, silver, copper and zinc is the town's backbone dominating the skyline as well as the local economy. The town can attest to being home to one of the most productive single mines. Visitors to Mt Isa comment on seeing a mirage of the town long before they arrive due to the mining infrastructure that dots the town.

Mount Isa experiences a hot semi-arid climate with a sweltering wet season from December and March and a lengthy dry season from April and November, with cooler nights and lower humidity.

Mount Isa Medical Centre consists of a team of qualified GPs and a number of specialists servicing the community across every stage in life from newborns to elderly pensioners. As a medical hub across Western Queensland the medical centre sees patients from as far as 300km away on the Queensland-Northern Territory border.

This position is for a doctor providing general practice services to community, working alongside a highly experienced GPs and health professionals. Study leave and relocation subsidy are available with the position.
